Program Results and Effect:

The Compensation Division has continued to meet or exceed all performance Parameters, while significantly increasing its emphasis on customer outreach activities. These activities center around site visits to sureties and employers across the state. During these visits, staff members audit company compliance with statutory and regulatory requirements, provide training to company employees, and share innovative and efficient practices encountered during visits to other companies. Continued efforts to expand our acceptance of electronically submitted First Reports of Injury will result in a reduction in our manual data entry requirements. Employees formerly engaged solely in data entry are being trained to perform reviews of summaries of payments, enhancing the Commission's efficiency and production.

Program Results and Effect:

The Commission's Rehabilitation Division continues to be extremely effective in assisting injured workers in their return to employment. Last fiscal year's statistics show workers rehabilitated by the division retaining their pre-injury wage earning level. In addition to benefiting workers, this has a positive financial effect on employers in terms of reduced disability payments.

Program Results and Effect:

The Adjudication Division continues to focus its efforts on the timely resolution of disputes. Procedures implemented by the Commission have resulted in substantial increase in performance since FY 1999. In FY 2001, the average time required to issue a decision in workers' compensation claims was 34 days, a significant improvement from the 143 days it required in FY 1999. The time required to issue a decision in unemployment insurance appeals was an average of 45 days, which compares favorable to the 153 days required in FY 1999. The Commission continues to exceed federal time standards for the time required to process upper level appeals and Idaho is now ranked among the leaders nationally. In addition, the mediation program continues to be successful in resolving disputes without the need for a formal hearing. Mediations are scheduled and held in a timely fashion (an average of 25 days from the initial request for mediation) and have an 86% success rate.

The first of the two new performance standards for unemployment insurance appeals reflects the addition of a third Federal time standard for processing these cases, requiring state appellate bodies to process 95% of all cases within 150 days of the date the appeal is received. The second new performance standard provides a more accurate picture of the Commission's timeliness in resolving unemployment insurance appeals. It mirrors our timeliness performance standard for workers' compensation cases.
